2018 Midterm Elections

The outcome of the 2018 midterm elections will determine the key congressional policy makers who will legislate the future of the Postal Service as well as the benefits earned by postal employees. Tonight, NAPS anxiously awaits voter results in pivotal House and Senate races. These are the races that will decide which political party will secure the majority in the House and Senate, who will chair the congressional committees crucial to promoting NAPS' legislative agenda, and which members of Congress will sit on those vital committees.

In order to provide NAPS members with an innovative, real-time election scorecard developed by Bloomberg Gov, NAPS' Department of Legislative and Political Affairs has provided the following link:
